Any One of These Mentioned Would Be Winner-How the President's Message is Figuring in the Fight

Cincinnati, O., August 9.-The knockdown and dragout portion of the argument to decide who shall lead the Ohio democracy this fall, is fairly on today. Monday and yesterday the delegates were merely arriving, standing around and talking, but today they are reaching for each other's wind, making ambitious passes for scalps and holding up records of their own and of the other fellows to the broad bright light of day, and shouting over the comparisons of purity. The fight is one of Neal against the field, with odds about even. Neal, is an out-and-out free-silver man and at the same time an advocate of a tariff for revenue only, and has unquestionably lost some ground by the president's message. The majority of the Ohio democracy is in favor of upholding the hands of the govern-ment, and as the president has openly declared for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law, and has practically said: "Let the tariff wait awhile. Some men who were for Lawrence T. Neal are beginning to think a few thoughts When the president's message was pubhished it was hotly denounced by many, who, later, had nothing to say save words of approval. It was far from suiting the ponents have not been slow to brand them as being opposed to the wishes of the administration. At the same time Neal's personal following is very strong, indeed, and it will go far toward lifting him in, no matter what his attitude toward the government or that of the government toward

C. D. Crites, chairman of the state cen tral committee, who was a strong Richie man before the withdrawal of that candidate, said this morning: "We must make a strong fight on state questions this time. The national policy is all well enough, but there are other things as well. People of Ohio must pay attention to the affairs of Ohio, and we believe that they can be better administered than they have been by Governor McKinley. State matters should be made an equal consideration with those of the nation at large this year.'

W. B. Richie, whom many declared could have been nominated on the first ballot, had he been willing to run, came to town last night. He carries a very large portion of the northwestern party of the state with him, and he is out for Neal. The Campbell forces are almost for any man beat Neal, and they are ing a desperate fight against him. It is really as much of a fight between The house may suspend the purchasing feature of the Sherman law until some fixed date, but the impression is growing the Campbell and anti-Campbell elements as upon any subject of state or national import. The main difficulty with the Campbell men is that they have not picked up any one man as the opponent of Neal. After the adjournment of the district Whatever is done the indications are that it will take time, and much time.

Possibilities, But He Says Nothing.

Washington, August 9.—Speaker Crisp did not come to the capitol today, but remained at his hotel, devoting the day to the consideration of the formation of the committees. He said yesterday, when asked about the probabilities in this connection, that he saw no reason for changing or modifying the opinion he had expressed when he first came to Washington, viz: That two or three weeks must elapse before the list would be announced.

There is still nothing but speculation possible concerning the regular committees. Speaker Crisp listens to all suggestions, requests and recommendations from members and others interested, but says nothing, at least nothing that can be quoted. Possibilities, But He Says Nothing-

Messrs. They came out of his room smiling and apparently confident and the latter insists that he will again be at the head of the leading committee of the house.

Another Short Session.

The senate was in session today only twenty minutes, and a considerable part of that time was occupied by the chapiain in an eloquent eulogy of the late Senator Stanford, of California. The only item of business transacted was the reference to the committee on appropriations of the house joint resolution to provide for the payment of sessional employes of the house during the present extraordinary session.

Mr. Gorman then moved that the senate adjourn and the yeas and nays were demanded. The vote was, yeas 48, nays 21, and the senate, at 12:20 h'clock, adjourned until tomorrow at noon. Mrs. Perry ran to the house and spread the news, which went like wild fire. In a very few minutes a posse of seventy-five or more was organized and the search began.

After a diligent search of four or five hours they found the negro between the Richmond and Danville railroad and the Port Royal and Western Carolina railroads. The posse consisted mostly of old men, who thought it was best to give him fifty lashes each, as long as the flend had not accomplished his heilish work. ANOTHER STREET FIGHT. Growing Out of that Famous Craddock Letter-An Exciting Time at Edgefield.

Columbia, S. C., August 9.—(Special.)—A dispatch to The State from Edgefield throws additional light on the famous Craddock letter, which Senator Irby swears Captain J. H. Tillman wrote and which Tillman, in J. H. Tillman wrote and which Tillman, in scorching language, accuses Irby of being the author of. This letter was the cause of Adjutant General Farley's hot attack on Irby, which has not been answered.

Yesterday afternoon, says the dispatch, Captain J. H. Tillman and W. J. Shelton, of The Register, met on the street and had some words about the voluminus Tillman-Farley-Irby a corrospondence. The lle passed. Tillman knocked Shelton down and straddled him. They are well matched in size; Shelton had an iron stick in his hand. It is said Shelton, while down, acknowledged that Irby dictated to Tighe, his secretary, the Washington dispatch, which so abundantly convicts Irby, and that Tighe translated his stenographic notes to Shelton and that Irby and Tighe themselves filed the dispatch at the telegraph office.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE HARD TIMES Is What Eugene Debs Says the Railroads

Are Doing.
Terre Haute, Ind., August 9.—Eugene Debs Terre Haute, Ind., August 9.—Eugene Debs, who was the chief organizer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, says the railway companies are not warranted in asking their employes to accept a reduction of 19 per cent in wages. He referred particularly to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Macka; systems, which are trying to make the reduction, as systems that did a better business in July than in the same month last year. He believes that an attempt is being made to take advantage of the hard times to reduce the standard of wages, not so much for the saving for a few months as pretended, but with the knowledge that it would take several years of effort on the part of the men to have the standard restored. "When any company has passed a dividend and causes the rich stockholder to feel the pinch then it will be time to pinch the employes. If the companies had pursued a polley of voluntarily raising wages when they were raised in the past the meu would be far more willing to heed the request for a reduction without questioning the assertion that it has become absolutely necessary."

The lower part of the city was submerged and the tracks of the Missouri Pacific and Rio Grande railroads were covered by several feet of water and badly damaged. World's Fair Grounds.

World's Fair, Chicago, August 9.—There were large crowds at the fair today, attracted by the many events of interest planned for the pleasure of visitors. The Virginia Day exercises attracted the sons and daughters of the state, which has given the country so many presidents. Knights of Pythias flocked into the grounds from an early hour, and the disciples of Izaak Walton threw their lines in every pond of water in the grounds. The Virginians who thronged Music hall heard patriotic speeches by the ton threw their lines in every pond of water in the grounds. The Virginians who thronged Music hall heard patriotic speeches by the sliver-tongued men of their native commonwealth. The day was the anniversary of the gathering at Williamsburg, Va., claimed to have been the first free legislative body to assemble in America. Among the more prominent persons present today were Senator Daniel and son, General Fitzbugh Lee, John E. Wise. Governor McKinney was to have been present, but was unable to attend on account of illness.

A band played the stirring strains of Dixle," and A. S. Butord, president of the Senator Daniel introduced in the senate a bill for holding the world's fair at Chicago. His address was listened to with marked attention. He reviewed at length the historical events which led to the celebration and praised Chicago for the magnificent exposition which it had erected.

There were several impromptu speeches made by prominent members of the state commission. Following the exertises a brilliant reception was given in Mount Vernon house, the state building, by the commissioners.

Turn in the Dispensary Case.

Greenville, S. C., August 9.—There was a double-twisted turn in the dispensary case in the Timted States court today.

In the matter of a habeas corpus of J. W. Ward, of Edgefield, agent for the Richmond and Danville railway, who was arrested for receiving and delivering whisky in violation of the dispensary act, today the state tried to evade bringing the matter into the United States cours by having the grand jury of Edgefield fall to bring in a bill of indictment against Ward.

The Richmond and Danville people were, however, prepared for this move and completely checkmated the state. Langford, agent of the road at Prosperity, in Newberry county, had been arrested and was under bonds for appearance before the court. As soon as the state showed its hand in the Ward case and he was discharged from custody, the railway authorities directed Langford to release his bondsmen and he sarrendered himself to the sheriff of Newberry county. The attorneys for the railway secured a writ of habeas corpus today in the case of Langford and he will be brought here tomorrow under this writ and the case will be heard by Judge Simonton.

If allowed, it is thought the bank will resume business in sixty days. The last statement made, July*15, 1893, gave the deposits, general and special, at $1.534, 941.11. For the past few months there has been a steady failing off of the bank's depositors, and today, being unable to realize on their securities in New York, the bank closed. The capital stock is $1.000,000; assets of last statement, $3.047.983,31.

The failure of the First National this afternoon, coming as it did, after banking hours, did not spread generally over the city until late this afternoon and tonight has been the general cause of talk in the clubs, hotels and on the streets. The officers and stockholders are among the leading men of the city in the business world and it is conceded the failure is a square one. Herman Justi is president; John P. Williams, vice president: W.H. Grantland, cashier. While an uneasy feeling prevails, it is not believed there will be much of a run on the other banks to-morrow.

After the suspension of the First National

They had not heard of the new order of things. Last night the savings bank managers decided to entorce the sixty days' clause. This action has apparently had the effect of allaying the fears of depositors and the run has ceased. The clearing house association at a meeting today agreed to hold currency as much as possible and to carry on business more largely than ever with checks. No depositor will be allowed to withdraw more than $50 per day in currency, but the banks are issuing clearing house certificates for the remainder. Money may be deposited for withdrawal. Speaking of the financial situation, President Baldwin, of the New Orleans National, said:

"I suppose that each of the leading banks in the city has been affected by the present trouble to a slight extent. Probably $50,000 has been withdrawn from us and a similar amount from other large financial institutions here. Some of the business men and timild depositors are alarmed and withdraw their money quickly. But instead of losing in the aggregate of business we have been gaining and there is unlimited confidence in the sound condition of the New Orleans banks."

Other Suspensions.

Minneapolle, Minn., August 9.—The Commercial bank closed its doors this morning. The bank is a small local institution doing business on the east side. Its capital is $290,000; its deposits $400,000 and its time deposits $292,000. The loans and discounts at the last statement amounted to $642,000. It is stated by the officers of the bank that depositors will be paid in full.

Rochester, Minn., August 9.—The Union National bank closed temporarily this morning. There was no stampede but slow withdrawals of deposits have reduced the bank's resources materially and the depreciation of commercial paper had some effect. The bank is solvent and will resume without the appointment of a receiver. The other banks are all considered solid.

Late last night the president of the bank. Nat Poyntz, Cashier James L. Giles and Director J. B. Parnamore were arrested on a charge of fraud. O'Neal, of this city, who are directors of the bank, and for O. T. Poyntz, assistent cashier. Poyntz is sick in bed. O'Neal is in Ohio.

All of the parties are prominent citizens, standing well in the community. Most people nere hope that everything with eventually turn out all right, though rumors are rife that the grounds for the charges are serious. Payntz was arrested under orders from Comptroller Eckles, charging him with making a false report to the comptroller of the treasury. This morning, upon his arrival there, he was taken before United States Commissioner C. S. Adams, who held a preliminary examination. The witnesses against Mr. Poyntz were C. S. Johnson, E. K. Smith, C. Warfield and James K. Duke, all employes of the bank. After hearing the testimony of the witnesses Commissioner Adams held Mr. Poyntz under $15,000 bond to appear at the next term of the United States court.

The Amendment of Balfour to the Irish Home Rule Bill

GIVING IRISH MEMBERS NO VOTE

WAS BADLY DEFEATED YESTERDAY

The Irishmen Saying They Freierred Ex clusion to Accepting the Terms the Amendment Offered.

London, August 9.—In the house of commons William McCartney, conservative, moved the adoption of an amendment to the home rule bill, providing in effect that the Irish members who shall be retained in the imperial parliament shall vote on no bill, motion or amendment except motions that may be made amendatory of the homs rule bill.

This amendment is the one that Mr. Balfour, the conservative leader in the house.

This amendment is the one that Mr. Balfour, the conservative leader in the house, intended to introduce last Monday, when the home rule bill came up on the report stage, but which his absence from the house at that time prevented him from doing.

During the debate on the motion Joseph Chamberlain, the liberal unionists leader, denounced the strategy of the government, by means of which a scheme was imposed on the house giving the Irish members who by means of which a scheme was imposed on the house giving the Irish members who should be retained the right to vote on all questions. The best and the only just arrangement would be the total exclusion of the Irish members from Westminster.

Henry Labourchere said that if the Irish sat in Westminster for partial purposes there would be two majorities in the house, which would destroy the foundation of parliamentary government. The house had either to accept full retention or full exclusion. If the bill were a complete measure of home rule, he would vote for full exclusion. It was not a complete measure and the honse rule, he would vote for full exclusion. It was not a complete measure and the house must, therefore, await the end of the probationary period, when full home rule would be given, before settling the ultimate status

Resountions were adopted declaring that the refusal of the government to amend the injustice of the financial proposals of the home rule bill was degrading and that the restrictions placing the Irish legislature under the imperial parliament, without power to control taxation or develop the unational interests, coupled with the reduction of the number of Irish representatives in the imperial parliament, render the bill impossible of acceptance by the Irish people.

SMUGGLING CATTLE.

San Antonio, Tex., August 9.—Colonel R. M. Moore, special agent of the treasury department, states that the troubles along the Rio Grande are serious. Some fifteen or twenty arrests have been made on charges of smuggling cattle from Mexico. Colonel Moore directed that arrests should only be made in cases in which the cattle could be identified by flesh marks independently of brands. The result has been that only about 200 or 300 head of cattle have been seized, where 2.000 might have been taken. The cattle are stolen from ranches in Mexico and smuggled across so that there are two charges in all cases. When the owners have been able to identify the cattle they have been allowed to replevin and take them back to Mexico.

Somebody Was Careless.

Mobile, Ala. August 9.—Lucten A. Holmes, a lineman for the Bell Telephone Company, was killed by an electric shock this afternoon at the corner of St. Michael and Lawrence streets.

He was cliding a pole when some wire he was carrying came in contact with a guy wire fastened to the pole. This guy wire was heavily charged with electricity and Holmes was involved instantly in a blaze of fire. He fell to the ground dead.

Investigation shows that the guy wire was connected with the electric trolley wire by a piece of wire tied around the two wires, the object of the tying being to keep the trolley wire away from a fire alarm wire which is in proximity to the trolley wire. It is not known who tied the wires together.

This is the second lineman who has lost his life by a shock here within the past twa weeks.

BARNESVILLE'S GOOD WATER.

Her Splendid Natural Advantages and How They've Been Utilized.

Barnesville, Ga., August 9.—(Special.)—Barnesville is now enjoying the many conveniences of one of the finest systems of waterworks in the south.

This was so unanimous that bonds were issued, contract let and work begun at once. Just one and one-eight of a mile out of the town is a very fine mountain spring with a capacity of three hundred gallons per minute of the clearest, prettlest and coolest mountain spring water one would care to drink.

Here a sixty-thousand gallon supply well was built and the pump station erected; the water is pumped from this well to the top of a high mountain peak one-quarter of a mile distant through an eight-inch main into the reservoir of 500,000-gallon capacity and is conveyed from there through a six-inch main to the city, where it is distributed over the city through four-inch pipes.

The beauty and perfection of our system is in the fact, that the main reservoir if one hundred and seventy-two feet above the level of the town and no stand pipe is necessary. We have enough pressure to throw a good stream of water over the highest point in the city.

Most every citizen has put in orders for connections and they realize that they must subscribe so as to meaning that they must subscribe so as to meaning that the works and make them a success.

Superintendent Bloodworth, who is a practical engineer and boiler maker, is devoting every energy to make everything work charmingly and he has it down fine.

Those who have taken water say they would not do without it for double the money they pay, and the seven that voted against the bonds being issued all join in and say. "We've got them; let's maintain them and pay for them as the bonds mature." This puts Barnesville in line with all the leading cities of the state. We have had all the other requisites for a number of years.

At 11 o'clock Colonel McGregor made a few amarks about the people's party paper and then Mr. Watson arose without an introduction and addressed the people for two hours and a haif. His entire speech was a denunctation of the democratic party and an appeal to the farmers to support Tom Watson. His speech was in the main the same as reported from other places. Instead of converting any to the people's party your correspondent heard many prominent citizens say they were through with it and had enough of any such politics as Tom Watson was advocating.

Tom Watson spoke here yesterday to an audience of fifteen hundred people. Nothing out of the regular order happened and the entire crowd was remarkably good humored, and with open mouths and bated breath drank down into the depths of their souls the words as they fell from the lips of the "agile statesman now seeking a job." Watson's arraignment of Congressman Livinstone was extremely bitter. He also indulged in sallies of wit at both the governor and Congressman Moses, though not so severe as was his allusions to Livingstone. He voted the crowd and many a brawny band went up as evidence of their faith. I hear of no converts.

The Chattaboochee Musical Convention Met on Sunday at Powell's Chapel.

Carrollton, Ga., August 9.—(Special.)—The fifty-sixth annual session of the Chattaboochee Musical convention was held at Powell's Chapel, ten miles northeast of Carrollton, commencing Thursday and ending yesterday evening. This convention was organized away back in the thirties and has met every year since except the four years of the war. Hon, B. F. White, the author of the "Sacred Harp," a music of the four-shaped notation, was president of this convention of singers till his dealth, and since that time Professor S. P. Barnett, of this county, have been the presiding officers.

The late session of this convention was very larcely attended. Singers all around for over a hundred miles were in attendance and each of the four days of the session the large-church house was crowded with lovers of vocal music. The book used at these conventions is the "Sacred Harp," a book that was used exclusively by the rural singers of a half century ago.

In all there were half a hundred leaders in attendance at this convention and each of these conducted lessions of music. Among these leaders were Mrs. T. I. Denson and Miss Denson, who seem to be experts in the singing art. On Sunday, when the crowd was the largest, these laddes were appointed to "lead" music, and this particular part of the session was of more than ordinary interest.

Hon, J. P. Reese, of Newnan, was reelected president.

The salaries of all the attorneys of the Central over the entire system have been reduced 33 per cent within the last day or two. This is another step in the cutting down of expenses throughout the system. Receiver Comer would say nothing about the matter except that such a reduction had been made, as it had been found neces-sary to reduce expenses in all departments.

It has been known for some time that expenses were being cut down all along the line, but no one ever thought of the attorneys suffering too. It seems, however, that they will all have to stand the racket, which has been the result of hard times, and although a 33 per cent reduction is rather a heavy one, no complaints have been heard. HE WAS HUNGRY.

Why the Parson Roasted His Flock for Not Paying His Salary. New Canann, Ct., August 9.—The Rev. F. A. Smith, of Silver Mine, Ct., has caused a sensation in the town. From his pulpit he informed the congregation that he and the members of his family were starving, simply because his salary was not forthcoming.

After preaching a good sermon and giving out the regular church notices, the Rev. Mr. Smith startled his hearers by saying "I come to you this morning with an emp-ty stomach. I have not had a mouthful to eat today, because I could not get it. There is not even a crust in the cupboard. For over a week I and my family have lived entirely upon blackberries and bread. The reason my family is not here this morning is because they have no shoes to wear. I do not ask charity, but only that you pay me the salary that you agreed to, that I may not starve."

that I may not starve."

This startling announcement, of course, created a sensation in the little congregation at once. Deacon William Lane, the only male member present, at once arose and took the minister to task for bringing a scandal upon the church by thus publicly announcing his private affairs from the pulpit when he ought to have come to him privately as the trustee, and he would have helped him.

have helped him.

Mrs. Robert Gick, who is one of the stewards of the church, sprang to her feet also, and said she did not see how a man could ride around all the time with a fine horse of his own and be in a starving condition.

The parson replied that not one penny of his salary went towards the keeping of his horse, as that was self-supporting, but he failed to tell in what way.

The Rev. Mr. Smith has a wife and daughter to support upon a $300 salary, and declares he cannot get even this small sum.

ary, and declares he cannot get even this small sum.

Deacon Lane, when called upon by a reporter, said: "We have hard work to support a preacher here, but Mr. Smith said he could stay here another year for $300 and house rent. I don't see how he can be in a starving condition when he has over a hundred chickens, which he has to feed and care for besides his horse, At a special meeting the other night we has to feed and care for besides his horse, At a special meeting the other night we offered to pay him his salary and give him a vacation until next October, when his year run out, and he agreed to take it, and we collected the money, but the next night he refused to take his salary in advance or take a vacation, but said he should stay here until October."

From the secretary of the church, Mrs. Joseph Guthrie, it was learned that up to August 1st the church owed the minister just $2.44. after deducting $23.25 for a grocery bill and $25 for repairs to the parson's carriage, which the church became responsible for.

The secretary handed the $2.44 to the preacher on Wednesday and he accepted it.

preacher on Wednesday and he accepted it.

"I have been here two years next October," said the Rev. Mr. Smith, "and have labored hard to build up the church and instruct the people in the way of righteousness. What I said in the pulpit was only the bare truth, and if it hurts any, one I can't he it. Had I accepted their invitation for a vacation and leave the church, I would make myself liable to church discipline, and says no preacher shall drop his church without permission of the president. I have preached here for five months, and only received $15 in cash, and two long months without receiving a penny, so, of course, I had to get into debt. I won't say they are trying to starve me out, but it looks that way."

There are many persons in the church who do not want Parson Smith to preach to them, and are not slow about stating to them, and are not slow about stating their opinion to him, and say that if he insists upon feeding them with the bread of life, he will have to live upon bread and blackberries, so far as they are concerned.

TO HAVE A GOOD TIME.

Young Vienna Couple Eloped to America and Came to Grief.

New York, August 9 .- Pretty Martha H. Heuer will have to go back to Austria. Not all the diamonds she wears, nor the tears she weeps will have any influence on the hearts of the immigration authorities on Ellis island; and Martha does wear lots of gems, too, and dresses brightly and looks a perfect picture of beauty amid her ommonplace surroundings in the pens of the big examination hall, which had, how ever been reached by a message from the consul at Vienna before Martha got there

The trouble is that although Martha crossed the ocean in second cabin, and should never in the ordinary way of things seen Ellis island, except from the steamer she came over as Martha Lindenbaum and not as Martha Heuer, the concert hall singer of the Austrian capital.

Herr Max Lindenbaum is also a prisoner for the present on the island. This gentleman is the son of a wealthy and well re man is the son of a wealthy and well reputed family in his own country, and admits that he has during his life of twenty-eight years put $150,000 in the hands of gamblers, who knew too much for him. Not long ago he disposed of his interest business venture for 2.000 gni in a small business venture for 2,000 guilders, and, having fallen violently in love with nineteen-year-old Martha, persuaded her to go to America with him, just to have a good time. So the girl packed up a very extensive wardrobe, left her three sisters, and came over with him on the Augusta Victoria.

They gave their names as Max and Mar-tha Lindenbaum, and applied for tha Lindenbaum, and applied for a room together, but as they nearly missed the ship they were forced to separate, she beship they were forced to separate, she being compelled to share the quarters of another female passenger. Some vigorous letter-writing and cabling followed, as the result of the young man's parents' wrath. When the big ship arrived at quarantine they were taken off by the Ellis island folks. Max was asked whether he was married to the girl. "No," he answered. Did he intend to marry her? No, he did not, as such an alliance would deprive him of his patrimony.

The story was sworn to and submitted to Acting Commissioner Sweeney, who decided that Martha was clearly barred by the law. She had not a cent to her name, was a minor and admitted that she had planted her affections already on too many men to enumerate, but especially on one Prince Schwartzenberg, of Vienna. Mr. Sweeney said this afternoon that the case was clear, so far as Martha was concerned, but he hardly thought that Max could be legally detained. In the meantime the young man is staying by his sweetheart on the island and thinks he will go back with her to some place where they have no rules.

A MASS MEETING TO BE HELD.

And the People Will Urge Congressm Stick to the Platform.

Stick to the Platform.

Americus, Ga., August 9.—(Special.)—Old clitzens of Americus say that not since 1860 has such a stir in politics been seen as resulted from the reading of the president's message here this morning.

Your corresponders kimaviewed a large number of citizens, merchants, lawyers and bankers, and the expressions are very generally strongly condemnatory of the president's attitude toward silver. With the exception of a dozen men, Americus is for the free coinage of silver and talk on the streets is that the people in mass meetings must raily to the support of the platform and the members of congress in their fight against the president's policy.

It is likely that a mass meeting will be held right away to express the disapproval of the people, and urge congressmen to stand firmly to the platform and force the immediate remonetizing of silver along with the repeal of the Sherman law.

Attraction and the People Will Have Long Chance to See It-What Was. Paid for the Canvas,

The Battle of Atlanta will be moved to Grant Park.

And for at least several years to come visitors to that delightful retreat will be given an opportunity to see one of the most realistic and thrilling paintings of the age. Several days ago when the painting was sold under the hammer Mr. Gress, the found-er of the Gress Zoo was amongst the bidders, and those who saw him run the price of the magnificent painting up were sure that he wanted to secure it to make it a part of the great show that he began at the park, and there were none who were not sorry when the painting was not bought by Mr. Gress. The painting was bought in by the East

Atlanta Land Company and the title to it has remained in that company since. But yesterday afternoon the title passed out of the East Atlanta Land Company to Mr. G. V. Gress and Mr. Charles Northen. For some time past these gentlemen, on the founder of the Zoo and the other a mem ber of the park committee of the general council, have been figuring on a purchase of the painting with a view of removing it to the park. The East Atlanta Land Company manifested a willingness to part with painting, and veterday Mr. Northen and Mr. Gress closed a trade with the company by which the title passed into their hands. The purchasers paid the East Atlanta Land Com pany just the same amount for the picture as the land company paid for it when they bought it in. The painting is one of the finest battle scenes in the world. Those who have seen it, and the number has run into the thoucloramas that have ever been exhibited this country. A few people think the Battle of Soudan is superior to the Atlanta, but the number is very small. In the Atlanta the figures appear at all times to be moving and there is more real life in it than in any of the many battle paintings.

The gentlemen who bought the painting are among the most devoted of Atlanta's citizens, and the purchase was made with a view of pleasing the people of Atlanta. That where the great battle was fought, is a fitting thing. And that it should have passed nto the hands of two such public spirited citizens as Messrs. Gress and Northen is a matter of congratulation. Neither of the gentlemen are inclined to talk much about the purchase, and what they intend to do with the canvass, but it is understood that the painting will be removed from the place in which it has rested so long to Grant park, where the people of the world will be given an opportunity to see, it for years to come. It will cost quite a snug sum, something like $2,500, to remove and house the painting at the park; and in order to pay this bil and keep an attendant in charge to protect the painting from curlosity hunters and other ills to which historic matters fall heir, it is probable that a nominal admission fee-say 10 cents, or half that amount-will be This would also have the effect charged. of keeping out all undesirable people, which is, of course, necessary in a place patron-ized as this would be by ladies and children. HONORING BISHOP WATTERSON.

Celebration of the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of His Labors.

Columbus, O., August 9.—The Catholics of this diocese yesterday celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the priestly and prelatical labors of Bishop John A. Watterson. Among the letters of sincere regret was one from Henry Watterson, a cousin, who explained privately tothe bishop why he could not be present. The bishop is forty-nine years of age and very popular with all clastes of people. He was horn why he could not be present. The bishop is forty-nine years of age and very popular with all classes of people. He was born at Blairsville, Pa., and educated at Emmittsburg, Md., becoming a member of the faculty of this alma mater and finally president in 1877. Among the guests present today are: Rev. William Henry Elder, Cincinnati; Right Rev. Monsignor Windhorn; Right Rev. John Conrad, New York; Right Rev. Thomas McGovern, Harrisburg, Pa.; Right Rev. H. Bishop Watterson celebrated pontifical mass at 10 o'clock this morning, among those present being Governor McKinley and Mayor Karb. These gentlemen and ex-Governor Campbell will be at the banquet this evening. The decoration of the cathedral is very elaborate. Presentations of great value were made to the bishop, being the aggregate collections from the diocese. A monster procession this afternoon closed the daylight part of the ceremonies.

An Unsatisfactory Schedule Lumpkin, Ga., August 9.—(Special.)—
Some of our citizens do not depend upon the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railway for transportation to and from other places. The existing schedule compels the overstay at night somewhere either going from or coming to Lumpkin, The aforesaid citizens went to Cutbbert Tuesday to meet some relatives from Enfaula. They arrived in Lumpkin nearly twenty-four hours earlier than they could have got here by the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railway, because they would have had to remain in Americus over night to have come that way. The present schedule is very inconvenient. Both trains, east-bound and west bound, arrive here about 1 o'clock p. m., but it is from 3 to 5 o'clock before we can get any mail. Passenger travel has well nigh abandoned it. The sale of tickets at this place has fallen off 50 per cent.

The more business was executed for China. The advance in the price of sliver encouraged a considerable number of purchases of sheetings, shirtings and drills. A slight advance on the lowest prices was sometimes obtained. Occasional sales of shirtings were made for Japan. Indian advices were quieter and prices showed a lower tendency, except for nineteen reed shirtings, the inquiry for which was fair. Printing cloths were neglected. Little inclination for business was shown. Yarns were weaker. Reports from the United States make buyers cautious. The fear of a stoppage of the milis at the end of the week as a result of the strike of coal miners militates against a further decline in prices.

Mr. Walker lives about six miles north of Griffin, and is one of Spalding's biggest planters, and he has the sympathy of the entire community for his loss. The contents of the barn consisted of 200 bushels of corn. 150 bushels of oats and a large lot of fodder and ruffage. Mr. Walker came very near losing one of his fine buggy horses, but just as the building was in the act of failing the sides were broken open and the horse permitted to get out free and uninjured.

It is an entire loss to Mr. Walker, as he had no insurance. The cause of the fire is not known, but it is thought to be incendiary.

The most important pies of the defense is to the effect that remarks by Gordon about Upshaw's wife were of such a nature that he was perfectly justifiable in taking the life of the deceased. There is much speculation, however, as to the outcome of the case. Evidence is Governor Northen speaks.

Governor Northen responded to the call of the convention in an impromptu speech of great power. He spoke in a feeling manner of the improved condition generally of the farmers of Georgia, and predicted that in the near future farming would be the most profitable, pleasant and inviting pursuit for our young men.

The governor was frequently applauded during the delivery of his address. Chancellor Boges Makes a Hit. Chancellor Boggs, of the State university, in responding to the invitation of the convention to address them, made a decided hit. It was a strong, masterly and sound address. He gave cogent reasons why farmers should not seek or desire aid from the government not seek or desire aid from the government and declared that neither state nor national legislation could accomplish for them what was in their power to do fur themselves. While he believed commercial fertilizers were valuable and indispensable, he urged farmers to pay stricter attention to their barnyard manure and compost heaps.

As one of the straws showing the possibilities of diversified agriculture, he cited the case where a man owning a canning factory agreed to pay 55 cents a bushel for all the okra a farmer would deliver him. The farmer pianted thirty-five acres in okra, and after furnishing the cannery with $3,200 worth, was induced for $200 not to haul any more. Dr. Boggs cited the work of the ladies of Winnsboro, S. C., who were operating a cannery there, and doing a large traffic to the great benefit of the community and the people who consumed their goods.

Dr. Boggs is very popular with the farmers and as an orator gets very close to them.

The remarks of Mr. S. T. Jenkhus. formerly editor of The Southern Enterprise, and now an extensive fruit grower in Randolph county, on "Fruit Growing in Georgia" were brief and pointed. He spoke of the superior advantages of Georgia for fruit growing, and instanced cases where parties had realized $500 per acre on peaches, after paying $300 per acre for freights.

Mr. B. D. Lumsden, of Macon, a relative of Bill Nye, judging from the vein of peculiar mumor that possesses him, presented a mirth-provoking and well digested paper entitled "A Plea for the Farmer's Friend." That friend was the mule. General Washington, he declared, was the founder of the mule. He considered the mule and the negro well suited to each other. You could not induce a mule to run over a precipice. Had the Jankees freed the mules when they freed the negroes, this country would now be a wilderness. Mules were the basis of credit. Mare mules were the best, and so were the females of all animals, except the partridge. He drew graphic pictures of the harsh and unjust treatment the mule was subjected to.

The Empire State. The Farmers' Friend.

The Empire State. Mr. C. J. Haden, of Atlanta, made a forcible and striking address, setting forth the reasons why Georgia is the Empire State of the South.

The address of Mr. C. J. Haden touched upon matters pertinent to Georgians, and was full of food for reflection. Speak-The address of Mr. C. J. Haden touched upon matters pertinent to Georgians, and was full of food for reflection. Speaking on the subject "Why Georgia is the Empire State of the South," he said:

The greatness of a state is not measured solely by the fertility of its soil. The valley of the Nile, the most fertile on the globe, is hopelessly mortgaged to British banks, while the rusy ged little island of Guernsey is blooming under a system of intensive farming. While the rich prairie farms of the west are plastered over with debenture bonds the stoney subsoil patch of New England supports a frugal family and lays aside a small residue in the savings bank. The alluvial valley of the Platte river is in the agony of a withering panic, while a vigorous peasanty still draws a livelihood from the rought, but unencumbered, hillsides of Bonnie Scotland. The difference lies in the spirit of the people and their methods of management. Good laws wisly administered, thrifty habits, systematic farming, business megrity, are essential, and these things explain why Georgia is the Empire State of the South.

The speaker said that Georgia was the first state to invite northern settlers and to project a great exposition. By doing so she had brought thousands of people and millions of money into her borders, gotten the lead of her sister states, and hastened the consummation of a practical peace between the sections. Moreover that Georgia was the first of the lawmaking powers of the English-speaking races to brush sway the compilicated cobwebs of the common law and simplify legal pleadings. And Georgia was the first to emancipate woman and make her a "man before the law." That our married woman's act of 1866, which had done this had been adopted almost verbatim by the English parliament.

Mf. Haden quoted the authorities showing Georgia's tax rate for ten years had been less than her sister states, while at the same time she had built and paid for, ynnkee-like capitol, which nether of the other states had done. Referring to Georgia our state can produce as good lemons as Mexico, as good apricots as France, as good figs as Italy, better pears than California, while a vell of cashmere with all the halo which the genius of Moore has thrown about it cannot produce a better pengranate than the good old county of Wilcox. While California is rainless and the Mediterranean islands have a rainfall of from sixteen to twenty-six inches per year."

Comparing Georgia with other states and countries, Mr. Haden said:

"The recuperative power of Georgia is with-Comparing Georgia with other states and countries, Mr. Haden said:

"The recuperative power of Georgia is without parallel in the history of the world. At the opening of the war in 1860 Georgia had a taxable valuation of $646,000,000; four years of fagot and famine reluced our taxable wealth to $120,000,000, and so poor were the people that the state issued bonds to raise money to help the helpless. Within just twenty-five years from the day of her darkest humiliation Georgia had re-established her public credit unexcelled by any state in the union. In 1890 our state floated bonds at par at 31-2 per cent. France, with 37,000,000 white people, ladd Germany a warindemnity of one billion dollars and amazed the financiers. Georgia, with less than 1,000,000 white people, lost $530,000,000 in the late war. France sustained a loss of $27 per capita, and was left with her social conditions unchanged, her commerce unimpaired and her government in her own hands. Georgia, with her social conditions upturned, her business paralyzed and the state government in the hands of negroes and aliens, rallied from a loss of over $500 per capita. The confederate soldler was transformed into a citizen, his sword into a plowshare, and under the magic touch of the two we have seen rise a real and the matchless phoenix of history."

The speaker made his best strokes in attacking the segrees in the far west or in Africa. He said:

The speaker made his best strokes in attacking; the suggestions lately put forth to colonize the negroes in the far west or in Africa. He said:

"This proposition is as impracticable as it is absurd, and I would make no reference to it but for the fact that our beloved Bill Arp has lately seen fit to discuss the matter favorally in a serious strain. We cannot spare the negro, he cannot do without us. He was brought to our land under protest, yet he and his children and his children's children have been faithful servants to this hour. When the manhood of our country was fighting its battles on the bloody fields of Virgibla the negroes at home provided for the family that was left helpless and lay before the door like a watch dog guarding the mother and little ones. The negro's removal would be bad for him, but worse for us. Those who have been brought in direct contact with him know he is an indispensable factor in our industrial system. Without him there would be a hush in the workshops, vacant fields by the roadside and ships in our ports would let their sails fiap idly in the breeze waiting for a cargo that would never come. Of all the drudgery workers of the world he is the least objectionable, the last to enter strikes and the last to complain of his lowly lot. While Pennsylvania suffers bloodshed at Pittsburg and Homestead, nobody ever hears of a strike on a Louisiana plantation or a Mississippi steamboat. The negro recognizes in the color of his face the emblem of his inferiority and willingly he submits to the menial pursuits of life. It may have been better if he had never come, but he is here woren into the fabric, and by the swent of his brow he has earned and should have a home among us forever. The friction between the races has been growing constantly less and less since reconstruction times. The negro problem has been slowly settling itself, there is less conflict between capital and labor in Georgia than in any other part of the world, and the question no longer disturbs any one except the politi

Hon. R. Z. In response to calls, Professor Hunnicut made a telling and effective talk on agriculture and the needs of the farmers. He urged farmers to pulverize the soil more effectually and they would increase the fertility of the soil without the use of so much commercial fertilizers.

Hon. G. M. Ryals. Hon. G. M. Ryals.

The speech of Hon. G. M. Ryals, of Chatham, blended quiet humor and sound sense admirably together. He made an interesting review of truck farming and its results. He said that he first ascertained what his neighbors needed most, then what the state needed and last what the world at large needed and endeavored to supply them when they needed it most. He closed with a reference to the manufacture of "stretchin" berries" into chewing gum for the ladies by the Ethiopian pickaninies of Chatham that brougth down the house.

Don't these added together make more than 169? The report says further: "Fifty-one of these banks are in the west forty-eight in the south and five in the east." This is not the case. the case. Up to June 24th last 284 banks suspended business, from all causes, in the west and twenty-seven in the eastern states. south this must include many individuals who do a kind of private banking business. It must include temporary suspensions of national banks in Texas. Again, the amount of capital involved in the bank failures south is but a fraction in comparison with the losses by western and eastern banks. The Message and the Platform The message of President Cleveland to congress, in extra session assembled, is not an inspiring document to those democrats who have devoted themselves to resisting the efforts of the republican party to fix the financial legislation of this country in the interest of the bondholders and capitalistic combinations, whose efforts are slowly destroying the value of the people's property and sweeping the profits of their labor into the pockets of the protected classes.

There are two elements of opposition to the Sherman law. One is the republican party, which, having framed it for the purpose of defeating a free coinage measure, employed it, as its authors now declare, to "educate" the people to the point of flying to the single gold standard for relief. How far their "education" has gone the republicans do not know, but the law stands in the way of a single gold standard, and the members of that party believe that the time is now ripe to repeal the law and reestablish the act of demonetization of

The other element of opposition is the democratic party, which perceives in the Sherman law "a cowardly makeshift" intended to embarrass legislation in behalf of silver as a monetary standard. For that reason the party is opposed to the law, and is anxious to secure its repeal.

Thus while both parties are earnestly arging the repeal of the Sherman law, their reasons are as opposite as the

The republicans would repeal it be cause its repeal, unless followed by the conditions of the democratic platform would bring the country to gold monometallism-a system which would increase the value of the money which the money lenders and gold sharks of the east have in store, and enable the national banking syndicate to perpetuate Itself by compelling an issue of bonds

The democrats, on the other hand, vould repeal it, as a "cowardly makethift," because it stands in the way of the restoration of silver to our currency as a monetary standard.

Mr. Cleveland's message favors and endorses the republican policy of repeal, and entirely ignores the democratic poli-

If he is right the democratic party is wrong, and has been wrong for twenty ears. If he is right, John Sherman and his republican colleagues are right; and it is eminently fitting that that rampant force bill champion and gold mono etallist, Henry Cabot Lodge, should, s he did, assume charge of the message n the senate and move its reference to a mittee, with instructions.

The duty of democrats in congress is in as day. They are not in a position to ignore the democratic policy put forth in the democratic platform. Speaker Crisp in his speech to the nominating caucus, outlined democratic duty in ine short, sharp sentence: "We must redeem our pledges." It is clear that Mr. Cleveland holds himself and his views above the party. He may be, his intimates have claimed, "a platform unto himself." But democratic congressmen cannot hold themselves above their party. They owe a responsibuity to both the party and the people, and this obligation they must discharge fearlessly and faithfully.

It would be no disparagement to the greatest democrat that ever lived to say that his opinions are not as important as the principles and pledges set forth in the party platform. It is not too auch to say that Mr. Cleveland's opinons cease to be important from a demoeratic standpoint when they seem to uphold the republican policy.

"We must redeem our pledges." They cannot be redeemed by adopting the policy which the republican party has made odious. They cannot be redeemed by repealing a law that stands in the way of the restoration of silver to our ency as a monetary standard, and ving our financial system where John an left it after the crime of demonetization in 1873.

the duty of southern democrats cially active and insistent in s to redeem the pledges of The party here must be r; it must continue to pret a united front; but it cannot be held vinced that the financial policy of the democrats is identical with that of John Sherman and the republican party.

Europe's Financial System.

Mr. Balfour, the conservative leader, in his speech in favor of bimetallism be fore the meeting of the business men and bankers at the official residence of the lord mayor of London, dwelt on the desirability of a stable standard of currency; but he distinctly and emphatically repudiated the claim that gold is a stable standard when employed by itself to do the largest part of the business of the world. Instead of being a stable standard, it is dangerously unsta ble, constantly increasing in value and in purchasing power-an increase that is infallibly registered in a constant decline in values and a constant fall in prices, followed by depression in business and a strangulation of prosperity.

Mr. Balfour had no hesitation in declaring that if there were a choice between an appreciating and depreciating standard of value, he would unhesitat ingly choose the latter, the reason being that prosperity and industrial growth go hand in hand with reasonably high prices of the products of human labor.

Those who talk about an "honest" dollar do so ignorantly, or with the intention of bewildering the ignorant. An "honest" dollar is one whose purchasing power remains the same at all times and under all circumstances, and, in the whole history of the world, such a dol lar, or such a unit of valus has never been found. There never was and never will be a dollar whose purchasing power remained the same. To inven or coin such a dollar, the government would first have to find the means or the power to fix the prices of all com-nodities, as well as rents and wages. The "honest" dollar is what govern ments aim at, but the appreciating dollar-the dollar that is constantly increasing in purchasing power-is more dis onest than the depreciating dollar, for the reason that it destroys values and profits, depresses business, stifles industrial growth and development, closes a thousand doors that ought to be opened to labor and the enterprises that labor depends on, increases the value of debts and interest, and pinches the very class that ought to reap the benefits of wise and just legislation. When Mr. Balfour compared the ap reciating with the depreciating standard, and declared that the single gold standard strangled business and enterprise, he had under his eves the spectaele afforded by the gold standard nations of Europe. He knew what their experience had been. As a political eader and student of affairs, he knew the condition of the people in those nations-the people who, in the nature of things, have small share in making laws and in fixing monetary standards

The condition of the people of Europe today ought to be a warning to the people of this country. Under the strangulating influence of the single gold standard the prosperity of the farming classes has been practically destroyed, except in France, where the shadow of bimetallism still survives. The laboring men have been reduced to the level of paupers, and all prosperity and all profits are constantly flowing in the direction of the bankers, bondholders and capitalistic combinations. Thus it is that the laboring people of Europe are constantly fleeing from the conditions that oppress them there to find a refuge in this

When the infamous crime of silver de nonetization is made complete in this republic, there will be but one thing for the people to do. Having imported the financial system invented by the European Shylocks, it will only be necessary to import a crowned head to take charge of affairs. We shall then have the European financial system with all its trimmings.

Strange Solar Disturbances

Last Sunday twelve spots were discovered on the face of the sun. During the week these spots have grown much larger, and one of them can be easily seen through a smoked glass. Professor Monell, of Columbia college, attaches no special significance to these spots, and denies that they will cause great atmospheric disturb ances. He says that they are cavities or immense chasms on the sun's surface. They probably result from tremendous disruptions, similar to those which took place on our own earth when it was in a primeval state.

At the Lick observatory a comet has been discovered on the sun's face. Whether these disturbances are reponsible for our weather and for the earthquakes reported in our news columns is a mooted question. Scientific men generally agree with Professor Monell. Among the masses, however, the belief is wide-spread that sun spots and comets are the forerunners of war, pestilence, panics and all sorts of misfortunes. One thing is certain-the spots

Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, is so well acquainted with the spirit and temper of his people that he must be aware of the danger of reckless and intemperate speech.

Yet the mayor in a public address, the other day, referred to the fact that there are now in Chicago 200,000 unemployed people almost destitute of money. He predicted riots that will shake the country, if congress fails to provide financial relief in the shape of more money. In times of public discontent and excitement popular leaders, men of influence and high officials, should be conservative in their utterances. A prediction of mob violence is very unwise when the masses are in a lawless mood. If Mayor Harrison looks forward to a riot in his city he should make preparations to suppress it instead of predicting

The authorities have it in their power to control lawlessness and it is a great mistake for the mayor of a city like Chicago to indulge in predictions that sound like threats.

Our misfortunes are only temporary, and the same sun which is now shining upon millions of productive acres with their counteous crops will, in a few months, look down upon a happy and a prosper ous nation.

The Fortunate South. Our northern contemporaries are comnenting upon the fact that few or no reports of industrial paralysis have been eceived from the south. This state of affairs is accounted for n part by the treasurer of a big cotton mill at Lowell. In comparing his mill with southern competitors he said that the average southern mill runs twelve ours against his ten; it turns out fiftyfive yards of standard sheetings to Lowell's forty-two; fifty-six yards of standard drills to Lowell's forty-six: forty-three yards of four-yard sheetings Lowell's thirty-six, and so on.

The Lowell man went on to say that the southern mills have just as good spinners and weavers as can be found anywhere. They buy cotton cheaper than the northern mills can get it, and their dividends are larger.

The New York Evening Sun, in an editorial on the northern and southern cotton mills, declares that as matters stand at present the former cannot reduce vages or resort to any expedient that will enable them to meet southern competition. They must wait for better prices and an increased demand for their roducts.

We have now merely an indication of what the south's industrial future will The time is near at hand when the great manufacturing industries of this country will seek locations within sight of southern fields, forests and mines. The good fortune of the industrial south in escaping the evils of the present depression has given the northern manufacturers something to pon-

Human Nature Here and There. The other day a tramp entered Lew ston, N. Y., and attempted to assaul a little girl.

The outlaw was arrested and sent to jail. Early that evening a crowd tried to lynch the prisoners, but the officers persuaded the men to disperse. Later, another crowd surrounded the jail, and attempted to burn the structure with the tramp in it. After considerable disturbance, the villagers were induced to abandon their cremation idea

The Boys and Their Problem.

The New York Tribune expresses the opinion that while our boys now enjoy superior educational advantages and go out into the world trained for successful careers, they do not get on as rapidly as their fathers have done before them.

It says: The fault lies or with the bo nor with the boys. There is an improved system of training and there is better stuff in the boys. The difference lies in opportunity. Forty years (ago, when ne towns were springing up on all sides and the western states were filling with settlers, a young man with a fair education for business or professional life had only to drift with the current and then grow up with the country. His progress was rapid and his success almost inevitable. Young yers, doctors, engineers and clerks now have to struggle hard in order to make of population: Character, energy, education and business qualities, while more necessary now than ever before, are relatively less valuable as stock in trade for success in life.

Our contemporary goes on to say that while the fathers believe that there is a better chance for their boys in America than anywhere else, the boys them selves of late years have not been equally sanguine. They leave school or college with a hopeless feeling, and it seems to them that education does not count for much, since all the world studies and reads and has a training of some sort. Every profession is crowded, and the average boy wonders what he can do to better his condition.

The Tribune gives only a few half truths. The trouble is that our educational system and the conventional methods of society crush out a boy's individuality. Especially is this the case in the east. The average western or southern boy who grows up regarding himself as his own boss-as good as anybody else if not a little better-gen erally manages to make his education. talent and character count for some thing. Less than thirty years ago the south was an utterly ruined and poverty stricken land. And yet from this sec tion youngsters have gone forth to be come millionaires and managers of great enterprises in the overcrowded east They have succeeded in commerce, in science and in the professions amids the fierce competition of Europe. They have left their impress upon Africa Siam, Mexico and Central and South America, to say nothing of their work in building up their native south. These southern boys retained their in dividuality and they have made their way in the world more rapidly than their fathers ever did. In serious, so ber earnest, the best advice that we can give to a northern father, with a naturally bright son, is to send the boy down south to be educated in our schools and colleges. The lad will get a good education and when he is ready to make start in life he will not complain that the outlook is hopeless. He will follow the example of his southern comrades bring his will power and individuality into play, and conquer a place for him self in the world. The discourage northern boy should change his base and be repaired and remodeled.

It is said that Indians who cannot mill carry a pocket flask.

If Senator Colquitt retires it will be his own voluntary act, and it will be brought about by his own desire to quit public life or by a conviction that official cares will further endanger his health. Fears of defeat cannot retire the grand old man, and if he makes up his mind to stay in his place his friends and opponents alike wil have to admit his power and wonderful 'popularity. He will give them all such a manifestation that his friends will rejoice in his old-time fervor and his enemies will tremble at his approach. Few men in Georgia have had such strong personal influence as Senator Colquitt, and his faithfulness to his friends will hold them to him at his bidding. If he wants to go back to the senate again he is liable to go there, and if the boys really want him to retire they had better quit retiring him until the old warhorse is ready to put off his harness. pointons and even to run again, but i

Gold a Drug.

From The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.
A business man with considerable foresight predicted that within six weeks from the 1st of August forty mill a week. The same banking houses in New York that shipped so largely are now im porting he metal. Thus steamships and banks are having a second whack at the business. This flow is not forced, but is entirely natural. It results from a change in balance of trade. Sterling exchange drug in our market, and banks are called upon to loan money to those who have bills for sale drawn against those who have shipments of produce and securities purchased in our markets on foreign account. While this is an encouraging feature as regards trade, and signifies a recovery from the prevailing depression, it must be remarked that gold is a drug in the market. There is not a bank in Cincinnati or in any of is not a bank in Cincinnati or in any of the leading commercial cities that would not rather pay gold over the counter than currency. Go into any of our banks and you will discover piles of the precious metal on the paying teker's desk, and that obliging official will ask you courteously if you would not prefer gold to paper. As a rule paper is preferred, even silver certificates. Almost every day banks send to the subtreasury asking for paper in exchange for gold, but seldom succeed. In New York the subtreasury undertook to pay gold in settlement of seldom succeed. In New York the sury undertook to pay gold in settles ury undertook to pay gold in settlement of balances at the clearing bouse, but tills was objected to so pointedly by the banks that the policy was not persisted in. All, tear in mind, happens before the forty millions of gold from Europe reaches our shores. Who, therefore, will say that gold is not a drug in the market? It may be remarked that gold in the treasury has again reached the one hundred million limit of what is called free gold. In addition to this, there is in the United States treasury dollar for dollar in yellow metal for the gold certificates outstanding. The treasury, is, therefore, full and the heaville. of gold; the banks are also full, and ple do not want it. In view of he banks are also full, and the peo not want it. In view of the pre vailing want of confidence this is a most remarkable condition of affairs.

BALFOUR ON SILVER

The English Statesman's Remarks to the

The New York World's London correspondent called on Mr. Arthur J. Balfour, the leader of the conservative party in parliament, and asked for his opinion on the present financial situation. He referred the corat the Mansion house to prominent financier of London, of which the correspondent says "That speech, made before a company of em-neut merchants, was received with tokens of the most pronounced approval. Since its delivery, while the conservative press has either condemned or deprecated it, many of the greatest financiers of this city have given it qualified approval."

The World publishes the speech in full, and the following extracts will be read with interest.

The voluming extracts will be read with interest:

"I have heard it stated that those who go in for a double standard desire an inflated currency and by a process of inflation artificially to raise prices. I am not concerned to deny that. Possibly in the western states of America there may be a body of opinion of some importance on which this criticism may truly be passed. But I most emphatically assert that it is not true of any body of opinion in this country. We desire that we should find the most suitable measure of value practicable and possible, though I have no hesitation now in asserting that if you cannot attain this absolutely theoretical perfection it is better for the community at large that the standard should be depreciating rather than appreciating. Standard stability is the idea, but if it cannot be reached the worst alternation of all is that your standard should be a steadily appreciating one.

alternation of all is that your standard should be a steadily appreciating one.

"If that proposition be granted, I ask whether you think it probable, or even possible, that a general single gold standard should satisfy this requirement of stability, or at all events satisfy it as much as a double standard? Assuming a double standard possible do you not think that the requirement of stability would be better attained by it than by the maintenance of a single gold standard?

"Surely if it can be shown that, as regards its stability, its accessibility, its internationality, a double standard is incontrovertibly better than a single standard, and that the evils which follow from a single standard are not obscure and theoretical, but menacing and the stability transfer and every evils which follow from a single standard are not obscure and theoretical, but menacing and insistent touching every interest and every class, I have at all events made out a strong prima facie case, which every man should honestly examine for himself. Whether popular objections to a double standard are or are not well founded, it appears that there has been a Nemesls which has followed upon extreme adherence to what they are pleased to describe as orthodox doctrine.

"I appeal to that portion of my audience

"I appeal to that portion of my audience whose minds are not yet made up on this question to reflect whether, of all subjects in the world which deserve international treatment, that of the currecy does not stand in the very first rank.

"I urge them to consider whether we can afford to lose out of circulation in the world the whole of that vast mass of sliver which now does duty in oiling the wheels of commerce? whether we can contemplate without absolute terror the substitution of a gold standard throughout the world for the sliver standard which now covers so large a part of it?

"I ask whether they do not think that the "I ask whether they do not think that the great, preponderating opinion of the city of London ought to be thrown into the scale of those who desire to see some international settlement of this vast problem and the establishment—I would not say of universal bimetallim, for that, I believe unnecessary—but of some system under which every great commercial community throughout the world would contribute its share, at all events, to maintain the stability of the value of silver?"

ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE.

Proposes a Remedy. West Point, Ga., August 7 .- Editor West Point, Ga., August 1.—Entito constitution: Congress has met to discuss the financial situation. In my opinion gold and silver plays a small part in the depression of business. The trouble is with the stock exchange in New York. The controllers of our railroads can place in the exchange the roots worthless bonds through brokers for a most worthless bonds through brokers ommission. They are sold or place with the national banks, private banks and savings banks. These banks do nearly all their business with depositors' cash. Under ordinary circumstances our banks would refuse to loan on such collateral, but by offering large commission they will advan collateral when they that it is impossible for the bonds to be worth anything. Our southern roads today have millions of obligations on every mile have millions of obligations on every mile of road. Men who reap what little advance they could on these obligations and debts have retired and are posing as millionaires, leaving the banks' depositors and business to struggle with their selfish gains. Congress and the states should enact some law to prevent such wholesale thieving. It would be better to blot the New York stock exchange out of existence than to let it continue and have to meet these heavy losses. Give to have to meet these heavy losses. Give to congress and the people some plan. Let congress prohibit national banks from taking such collateral. Let states enact the same for her banks.

 Repeal the Sherman silver act.
 Enact free coinage of silver for the mines of the United States. mines of the United States.

3. Prohibit the issue by any bank any currency whatever below a $5 bill.

4. Make silver a legal tender to the amount of ($10) ten dollars.

5. Protect our home product of silver by tariff legislation so that only the product of our mines can be admitted to free coinage.

6. But most important of all, repeal the 10 per cent tax on state banks.

Ingersoll on Poetry.

From America.
I asked Colonel Ingersoll what true poetry was, in his unpoetle Nassau street law of-fice yesterday, and he replied: "The poetry born of experience. Let a man who has never lost a child, who has never dropped tears on the earth covering a loved one read a poem written by a man who has never known bereavement, and he will think it a poor poem. But when he shall lose a child or a dear one, that poem will not satisfy him. Then let him read a poem by one who has suffered as he has suffered, and he will come to a full realization of what poetry is. For instance, read Lowell's 'After the Burlal,' written after the death of his child. That came from the heart, rot from the head:

After hearing the testimons After hearing the testimony, the judge said: "While the accused were not acting in accordance with the established canons of good society, I cannot see that they were violating any law." "Of course not," were violating any law." "Of course not," said their autorney, "especially as they paid for their own eigarettes. This is an age of progress, and the young women were simply blazing the way." In this opinion the judge concurred, and the prisoners were discharged while the judge reprimanded the officers for interferring with them.

No American poetry of the day is attracting more attention than that of Mr. Stanton, of The Atlanta Constitution. It is to be seen in every newspaper in the country and in almost every scrapbook. No author could reasonably ask greater recognition than to have his productions find their way into the treasured scrapbooks of the great American people.

She has a sister, two years older than herself, and a brother four years older, living at home. She has a brother still older, who lives in Pennsylvania. The family came to Atlanta from Pennsylvania a year ago and lived on Whitehall street.

The beauty of the two young girls has often been remarked upon. They are very much alike and, when on the street, attract much attention. They have an army of admirers, but their mother objects to young men visiting them. These admirers have been so very persistent, however, that the young ladies have gone out with them at times, most of the time against the counse of the mother, and frequently without her knowledge.

The story of the young girl's disappearance from home, as told by herself after sne was brought to police headquarters yesterday afternoon, is about as follows: Late Tuesday afternoon Laura Nelson, a negro woman who nursed the young ladies and who has been their laundry woman for years, called the young ladies aside and told them that two young gentlemen friends of theirs, a Mr. Don White and a Mr. Sullivan, had asked her to get the young ladies to go with them to the theater that night. Knowing that their mother would object the young men suggested that they would meet them a few squares from the house just before starting to the theater.

The young girls, inexperienced and thought less, and desirous of seeing the show. accepted the invitation, intending to keep it secret from their mother and give her se other excuse for their absence. They told the negro woman that they would go and at the appointed time met the young men. But they were surprised when the young men got on a car going away from the theater. The young men explained that they thought they would enjoy a ride out to Grant park better than the show. They went to the park and in some way became separated. They returned to the city about midnight and one of the young men carried the fifteen-year-old girl to the home of the negro woman, Laura Nelson, on Railroad street. He persuaded her to remain there during the night, telling her that her mother would scold her for returning so late. He himself left the house.

her mother would scold her for returning so late. He himself left the house.

Yesterday morning Connie Pierson started home, but she says Laura Nelson detained her and locked her in her room. She began to cry, but the woman would not let her go, taking in an endearing way to her the wnie. All yesterday morning she was kept under lock and key, the woman telling her that she would allow her to go home in the afternoon. She brought her a dinner from a restaurant and about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after having a dinner from a restaurant and about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after having been confined all day, the young girl says the negro woman put her in a hack, saying she would carry her home.

She denied Connie Pierson's story and said that the girl had run away from home and spent the night somewhere in the city. Mrs. Pierson had sent her to find Counie and she went to the resort on Thompson street, where she was when arrested.

Connie Pierson was sent to her home in West End, where her mother was made acquainted with the facts. She was very much rejoiced to see her daughter again. From facts that he gathered Captain Thompson decided that some one else was more guilty of leading Connie Pierson astray than Laura Nelson and after she had been locked up two hours he released her on her own recognizance. A case of disorderly conduct was booked against her.

TWO INJUNCTIONS

Prayed For By Mrs. Flora Evans Against Scribner's Sons.

SHE GAVE UP ALL SHE HAD

To Pay Her Husband's Debts, But Alleges that She was Forced Into It By Agent Hersh.

A prayer for injunction against the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, Scribner's Sons and B. F. Hersh, was filed yesterday in the United States court clerk's office by Hamilton Douglas, solicitor for Mrs. Flora W. Evans, and Mrs. Flora W. Evans, administrataix.

The petition began by stating that the deceased husband of the petitioner held two policies in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, W. Woods White being the agent here. The first policy referred to is one for $5,000, made payable to Mrs. Flora Evans, individually, and the other is for $2,500 to go to the credit of his estate.

Mrs. Evans alleges that she owned property on Copenhill avenue, which belonged to her alone. It is made to appear in th prayer for injunction that, through duress, and for the purpose of paying the debt of her husband. Mrs. Evans was forced against her will and desire to make an assignment of both policies to B. F. Hersh or Scribner's Sons, and gave a deed to her property.

All of this occurred just after the death of Mr. W. I. Evans, husband of Mrs. Flora Evans.

Before his decease, Mr. Evans was manl ager of the southern department of Scribner's Sons, and while he was on what proved to be his death bed, he told his wife that owing to bad collections, he was in debt to the amount of several thousand dollars to Scribner's Sons. She then wrote a letter to the firm but received no reply. Some days later, however, she was approached by a man, who, the petition alleges, she had seen skulking in the neighporhood of her home for several days. The man immediately introduced himself as B. F. Hersh, and who had letters of introduction from Scribner's Sons.

A few days after this occurred, Mr. Evans was sent to New York for his health, and at that time death was not

Mrs. Evans states that she 'ad hardly bade farewell to her husband when B. F. Hersh came to her, and while she was harassed in mind and distracted about the condition of her husband and the future of her three children, he demanded of her security for her husband's debts. That she had never, before the visit of Hersh to Atlanta, seen him, and had had, up to that business or other dealings of any Hersh demanded the transfer of the said lot owned by herself, and the assignment of the said policies in satisfaction of part of the debt owed by her husband. Blame Yourself for Evil Consequences.

Mrs. Evans at first refused to consent o this, whereupon Hersh left saying that she would have no one but herself to blame for the evil consequences that would ollow." She was led to believe that her if she refused to transfer her property and the insurance policies to them.

The prayer for injunction sets forth that Mrs. Evans was badly worried, disturbed at the thought of what would be the situation of her children and nearly crazed over the dying condition of her husband. Mrs. Evans did not read the deed or assignments, nor have them read, but simply signed them. She says that she has been since informed that Hersh used his own name as grantee in the deed and assignments instead of that of Scribner's Scns.

Charged Them with Fraud. Mrs. Evans alleges that Scribners' Son and Hersh were in collusion to, and did by force, compulsion and threats, trick and defraud her out of her deed and assignments, made in absolute ignorance of her rights in the premise, and made wholly without consideration, save as for the ber efit of her husband's creditors. Scribner's Sons, and are absolutely void

In view of the foregoing, Mrs. Evans asks that a writ of injunction issue to enjoin and restrain W. Woods White from paying the said policies. And that another injunction be granted against Hersh and Schribner's Sons to prevent them from disposing of her property.

The attached copy of the deed to the Copenhill property shows that the deed has been recorded as to B. F. Hersh.

"Said Pasha" was given again last night at the Edgewood Avenue theater by the McCaul Opera Company, and a very fine production it was. The stage settings were very appropriate and the finale of the first act made quite an interesting picture. The costuming was very handsome all through the opera. This company is now giving productions that are fully equal to the traveling companies that come through here in the winter and charge higher prices. The choruses were very good indeed and the groupings were very picturesque and the company threw a great deal of dash and feeling into the performance.

Mr. Frank Pierson as Hadad made it very comical and proves the fact that he is a very versatile actor and singer. Mr. Hubert Matthews's antics and idiotic expression kept the bonse roaring. We have seldom seen as clever a Nackey as he makes. Mr. Chamberlain was quite good as the pasha, and some of his jokes were very laughable. Mr. Mack was very clever as Hassan Bey, and his duet with Miss Pierce was received with much appliause. Miss Bessie Pierce, who has gained much popularity while here, was quite charming in the role of Suana, and her clear, distinct notes were very pleasing and charmed her audience. Miss Dressler, of course, as usuad, was very interesting. This clever artist never falls to give her audiences something mew and catching. Her interpolated song. "Dadle Won't Eny Me a Bow-Wow," was a big hit, and she was called back repond, and one who would not be pleased with the performance would be hard to satisfy.

Their intent was robbery. Peterson kept the express office in his store and at times had considerable money on hand.

The negroes had previously ordered a heavy pistol each by express C. O. D., and when they went to get the weapons, one of the negroes saw the money. The pistols were handed to them by Peterson, little dreaming at the time that their cold muzzles would put him in the grave ere a fortnight.

But such was the case. That very night the negroes laid their plans for the robberty, and went to Peterson's store several nights before they killed him, to carry into effect their hellish purpose, but their hearts failed them.

The negroes belonged to a race of hybrids in South Carolina, known as Scuffletonians, being an admixture of Indian, negro and white blood. This accounts for their peculiar complexion, which gave them the "pied" look referred to by Peterson, when he was attacked by them. Two other negroes were arrested as accessories, and when court meets there will be at least a triple hanging.

A game rooster, with a pedigree six inches long, spurs as sharp as needles, feathers as glossy as fine silk and an air like a summer dude, is the one thing that led young J. B. Allen astray, and, perhaps, changed the whole current of his life. couldn't resist the blooded rooster

Young Allen saw the rooster several times and admired him. He wanted of all things to possess just such a bird, and yes-terday morning when Mr. Cramer went out to bid his chanticleer good morning he was astounded to find him gone. He hurried to police headquarters and reported the case to the detectives. Captain Wright put Detective Etheridge on the case, and before noon that watchful officer had both the rooster and young J. A warrant was sworn out against Allen and he was put under a $200 bond pending a preliminary trial, which was set for this afternoon. Young Allen is well connected and had a good position. He is just sixteen

WEATHER FORECAST AND SYNOPSIS.

Strange to say, Tampa, Fla., had the low-est maximum temperature vesterday of any city reporting from any section of the Uni-ted States; that is, every other city in the city reporting from any section of the Christes; that is, every other city in the country between the Rockies and the Atlantic experienced greater heat yesterday than Tampa. This is accountable only from the fact of the very heavy rain in Tampa, which prevented the sun from warming up that city as it usually does. Seventy-eight degrees was the highest point reached by thermometers there yesterday. Hot weather was reported yesterday in nearly all parts of the north. At Buffalo, Cincinnati and New York city there was a temperature of 90 degrees; at Kansas City and Omaha a temperature of 92 degrees, and at Huron and St. Paul one of 94 degrees. Temperatures in the southern states yesterday were generally no higher than those in the north and in many cases not as high by several degrees. The highest temperature reported yesterday in the whole country was 96 degrees at Memphis. In Atlanta the temperature was up to 85 degrees, just one degree warmer than in Chicago.

Scattered light showers occurred yesterday in Texas and the lower Mississippi valley, also over a little of Georgia, but it was in Florida, where the rainfall was particularly heavy. In Jacksonville it amounted to 1.72 inches, and in Tampa to 1.82 inches. For Georgia fuday: Local showers in the extreme northern part of the state and on the coast; otherwise fair; no decided change in temperature.

Bladder troubles arise from varied causes and manifest themselves in varied forms. Commencing in some part of the urinary tract an irritation often extends to the neck of the bladder, and even involves the whole organ—producing cystitis, mucus discharges, etc. At other times an irritable condition of the urine will develop bladder trouble in its most aggravated form.

Pain in the small of the back, hips and thighs; heat and inflammation; frequent desire to pass water; smarting, indescribable agonies which render life a burden, are a few of the symptoms of diseased bladder. The reason why people are so diseased when sick, and why so many die, is because they do not get a medicine that will pass to the afflicted parts—a medicine that strikes the root of the disease.

NEW YORK, Apgust 9.—The dealings of the stock exchange were characterized by weakness during a great part of the day and in some instances sharp declines were recorded. The bears were unusually aggressive, having been encouraged in their operations by the closing of the Madison Square bank, the continued high premiums paid for currency and gold and rumors, afterward denied, that the General Electric company's paper had gone to protest. On the other hand there was little or no support from any quarter. The heaviest declines were 6 1-8 in General Electric, 3 1-2 in Chicago Gas, 3 3-8 in Western Union, 3 1-8 in Burlington and Quincy, 2 1-4 in Sugar, 2 in Lackawanna and 1 3-4 in Manhattan and Rock Island. The offerings were not particularly heavy and the losses resulted chiefly from the lack of supporting orders. As on yesterday, the selling for the long account was comparatively light, a fact which made itself felt during the last hour of business when the whole market took on strength and advanced anywhere from 1 to 4 points. Sugar and General Electric led the upward movement, the latter on the announcement that the friends of the company had provided the $4,00,000 necessary to liquidate the floating debt. When the bears attempted to cover they found the supply of stocks much smaller than expected and the result was a regular scramble to purchase near the close. The heavy influx of gold was not without its influence in stimulating the late recovery. The transactions aggregated 249,000 shares, including 39,000 unlisted. Speculation was strong in tone with quotations in a number of instances above, those of yesterday.

NEW YORK, August 9.—The feeling this morning was very bine and the announcement of the suspension of a small bank up town with $1,200,000 deposits only added to the nervous feeling and this made the bears very active, selling the entire market. They kept this up until 1:30 p. m., when the larger traders seeing that the short interest was very heavy, made a turn and bid up prices rallying the market quickly to the great surprise of the hear element. The first stock that evinced any marked weakness was General Electric in which there was a rumor that some of their paper had gone to protest. The report was quickly denied, however, by the officials of the company, but still the rumor served its purpose in materially lowering the quotations for the stock. The action of the clearing house was also misconstrued, but the fact of the matter is that the banks of New York have made an agreement to charge out-of-town banks 12 per cent interest on balances not made up. The movement of gold from the other side continues very large and with the engagements today, the amount on the way and already here, the total is premium beling paid by the banks for this gold. We understand the Bank of England has raised its selling prices today and it is therefore more than likely that the bank notes of discount will also be raised tomorrow. We hardly think any further big amounts will be engaged for shipment and it will be of great interest to see whether or not these big imports of gold will assist the hunsion. They surely should bring some relief. The short interest in the market is still quite heavy but if any good news should come the market will "ally sharnly. The key to the action of the market sharing the market is attill quite heavy but if any good news should come the market will assist the hundoubtedly be the news from Washington. When, however, the local trade felt that the rains in Texas would samficiently counterbalance the bad bureau report tomorrow, the cotton which was covered was immediately resold, and the market became dull and barely steady at yesterday's closing figures. According to the report published by the weather service this morning there has been a general improvement over the cotton beit, and prospects have materially improved during the past ten days. NEW YORK, August 9—The favorable Liverpool cables this morning caused our market to open at an advance of 607 points, all of which was lost within a few minutes, due entirely to lack of buying orders and pounding by local bears, which are in a large majority. Late in the day some buying orders were received which met with no seliers, as they were all short. Notwithstanding the very beariah feeling the shorts show considerable nervousness when the market becomes firm, and they try to cover. They also show considerable nervousness on account of the coming bureau report, notwithstanding they are inclined to ridicule it. I am not taking builish; am only giving you features by which the market is governed showing the reason for the various changes. The bureau report is not expected to show over 50, and many think it will fall 1021 per cent below that. Last year the condition was 82,3 and last month it was 82.7.

THE CHICAGO MARKEL THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

OHICAGO, August 9.—The corn pit was the center of interest most of the time today. Wheat was largely a side issue. The government weekly weather bulletin showed serious damage to corn in many states by drought and reports from the country were more emphatic than before regarding the imminence of a great disaster to the crop. There was somewakness near the close on a report that rain was falling in Nebraska. Compared with last night May corn left off le. higher, wheat is 1-8 to 1-4 down. Pork and ribs are each up 20c. and lard 40c. Transactions in corn were not confined to the focil trade, the outside interest increasing and buying orders becoming numerous. The government weekly weather bulletin demonstrated that the past week was a hard one in inflicting more damage than any previous week. Today there were scattering showers throughed the forthwest. Colorado and Nebraska, it being dry and hot eisewhere, and private advices reported considerable injury in Nebraska and other leading corn raising states, which, a short time back, promised an immense yield. The money situation is in such shage that the cash trade is generally curtailed and has a dampening effect on the near futures, exchange cutting a considerable figure. The market opened at vesterday's final figures and under an urgent demand from shorts advanced 1 to 1 1-8c. for September and 1 1-4c. for December, working back respectively 3-8 to 3-4c, and 1 1-4c, and at the close the former was up 3-8 to 1-2c, and the latter 1 to 1 1-8c. Receipts were light and estimates for tomorrow are also very moderate.

Wheat at the opening was easy and from 3-8 to 5-8c. lower, then improved, prices for September and 1-4c. lower for December than the closing figure of yesterday.

The uncertainty in regard to the financial situation and the report of the failure of a Features of the speculative Movement in about 1-Sc. lower for September and 1-Sc. lower for December than the closing figure of yesterday.

The uncertainty in regard to the financial situation and the report of the failure of a New York bank had some effect; but there was buying from other sources on a moderate scale, influenced by good clearances from the seaboard and rather uncoverable crop news. Operators also expect that the government monthly report will be builtish. The weekly report said that the drought was affecting the crop in Minnesota. the spring wheat crop in Wisconsin was light and in North Dakota was suffering for rain. There was $2,300,000 more gold taken in Europe for America. Cabic advices were of an unfavorable tenor, but presumably a reflection of the American market.

Oats showed a better trade and a stronger feeling, due to sympathy with corn and also to crop reports being rather unfavorable. The feature was the strength and advance of 1.14 in May, while September advanced 7-Sc. The bulge brought out liberal selling and prices reacted 1-1 to 3-Sc. and the market closed steady.

1 1.4 in May, wanted out liberal sching and prices reacted 1.4 to 3.8c. and the market closed steady.

The provision market was yery firm on a very moderate amount of flusiness. The firmness was the result of small offerings. The hog receipts as reported from the yards only amounted to 9.000 head. Instead of 16.000, as had been expected. Some buying led by Armour & Co.. caused some shorts to cover. Lard was the most active article on the list. On the advance there was some long to the list. On the advance there was some long to the list. On the advance there was some long to the sold out which was said to be the cleaning up of a line which was only partially liquidated on the slump a week ago.

The leading futures ranged as follows in Chicago.

morning and cables were all lower. New York stock market was weak and lower from Wall street speculators looking upon the president's message as giving no immediate promise of an easier money market. Our wheat market opened very weak, September selling to 591-8, but at the decline there appeared a good demand. Shorts appeared willing to cover and many brought a little long, thinking a reaction due, and in this they were right, as prices advanced to. The exports were again large, nearly 2,000,000 bushels for two days. Receipts are light everywhere. Exchange is reported easier, likely from the liberal receipts of gold from Europe and further large engagements from London today. Wheat will likely rule quiet until after the government report, due Thursday. Close was easier and very dull. Corn opened steady but soon advanced sharply on the severe drought in all directions, which is now a serious matter with potatoes; the crop is in even greater danger than corn. The signal service predicting local thunderstorms in nearly every state in the corn country caused easier feeling towards the close. Closed 5-8 higher for September and 1c up for May.

Outs opened steady but soon ruled very strong and higher. Complaints of light yield of oats come from a very large portion of the oats country.

Lard very strong, feeling keenly the large purchases by the large reporters since the TO RETAIL DEALERS:

JOHNSON BEAT ZIMMERMAN

In the Five-Mile National Championshid Race at Chicago Yesterday.

Race at Chicago Vesterday.

Chicago, August 0.—The seventh event, the five-mile national championship, was the race of the day and of the tournament. Such talent as Zimmerman, J. S. Johnson, F. H. Tuttle, L. D. Munger, C. T. Kinsley, H. L. Githens and G. D. Gary appeared on the track. At the shot Munger took the lead and set the pace for a lap, when Kinsley took his place. They varied with Tuttle and, Githens, and as the miles piled up it was seen that a wonderfully fast race was being riden. Faster and faster spun the wheels. Kinsley shot into the lead. As the riders flashed across the line W. H. Vansicklen ran forward and announced that the world's record for four miles in competition had been broken. The time for the four miles was 10:12-1-5, which gives Kinsley the championship record by one second. But the race was getting still more earnest. Johnson and Zimmerman took the lead. As the riders whirled around the north turn in the finish lap, Zimmerman bent to his work, with Githens less than a length behind, followed closely by Johnson, Zimmerman shot into the stretch with a slight increase in his lead and many were shouting his name as a winner.

and many were shouting his name as a winner.

Johnson, however, had been riding up into a phenomenal spurt and as the last 200 yards were entered up he caught Zimmerman and dashed across the line a winner by five feet. There was a claim made by Zimmerman's trainer that his wheel had a soft tire, but it was generally conceded that the Minneapolis man had fairly won the great race upon his own merits and not through chance or luck.

Johnson's time was 12:41, against the world's record of 12:36.

Zimmersan landed the other two races he entered, including the quarter mile national championship in 0:31 2-5, and the one mile ordinary championship in 3:10. The other honors of the day fell to A. T. Crooks, of Fundic, who won the one mile handicap from 50 yards in 2:07 1.5, and the two-mile handicap from 90 yards in 4:33 3-5.

The first heat of the quarter of a mile national championship was won by Zimmerman in wonderful form. He shot ahead at the start and kept his great pace in front, although Tuttle pushed him hard, inisising only fifteen feet behind. Time :32. Johnson in the second heat finished a dead heat with H. C. Tyler in 32 1-5.

In the first heat of the two mile handicap Meintz won by forty feet in 400 ahead of J. Bilss; Lumsdan won second heat. Time 4:23.

J. J. Brandenburg won the third. Time 4:23.

The following dispatch, which will be nterest to all Georgians, was received by The Constitution last night: "Washington, August 9 .- (Special.)-Here is the latest Atlanta news in Washington.

It is taken from the society column of The Evening News. 'It is said that ex-Senator Joseph B. Brown's daughter, Miss Sally Brown, will marry Secretary Herbert. It eems that they met at Chicago recently while they were in attendance on the world's fair. It was a case of love at first sight. They speedily became engaged. When the marriage will take place is not known. Miss Brown is from twenty-five to thirty years old and is very accomplished.'

A member of ex-Senator Brown's family, on being shown this dispatch said:

"Oh, there is nothing in it at all. I assure you. Miss Brown has just returned from Chicago. While there she met Secretary Herbert. The secretary and Senator Brown roomed at the Metropolitan during the term of the latter in the senate. Thus their families became intimate. The secretary, meeting the daughter of his old friend in Chicago, paid her the attentions which the circumstances warranted. Out of this has grown these reports. There has been nothing given out by either to justify the report.

Somebody has been telling stories of the unonial-of men who have figured in history. Doubtless a much larger list could be made up showing the unhappiness of wives, but that it another story. Some portions of this article about unhappy men are right ludicrous. Take the case of Dr. are right ludicrous. Take the case of Dr. Cadogan, for instance, who was a noted physician of the days of Charles II, married a lady several years older than himself. She proved to be jenious, and accused him in the presence of his friends of giving her poison to kill her in order that he might marry some one else. He told her she was mistaken, and, to convince her, assured the company that they were quite welcome to open her and see whether she had been poisoned.

John Wesley married a widow, Mrs. Vizelle, who grew tired of his restlessly laborious life and complained. He paid no attention, and from complaint she went on to jealously, thence to fury. He rebuked her sternly: "Do not any longer contend for mastery, for power, money or praise. Be content to be a private, insignificant person. Of what importance is your character to mankind? If you were buried just now, or had never lived, what loss would it be to the cause of God?" you were buried just now, or had never lived, what loss would it be to the cause of God?" She left him, taking with her a large number of his private papers, and he dismissed the subject by writing in his journal: "I did not forsake her; I did not dismiss her; I shall not call her back."

forsake her; I did not dismiss her, I shan ber call her back."

Coke, the English jurist, took for his second wife the widow of Sir William Hatton. The marriage was celebrated in an illegal manner, but, though at the time a judge, Coke was not ashamed to plead ignorance of the law in extenuation of his offense. The twain were very uncongenial and soon separated, and his wife, to avoid him, moved from house to house, seldom remaining more than two or three days at one place. One cause of contention was Coke's determination to compel his daughter to marry a man he had selected for her, and he carried his point, for, ascertaining where his wife was, he stormed the house with a body of servants, carried off the girl, and then, in his character as judge, made out an order sending her mother to prison. basque piece.

Large invoices of shoes are displayed designed for the wear and tear of rambles and climbings in country or mountains. These shoes are made of the lightest and softest of shoes are made of the lightest and softest of French calf. They outwear two or three pairs of "outing" shoes of the usual sort, and when polished shine like satin. They are made over "common sense" lasts, but are not of the radical sort, being comfortable and attractive modifications of the orthodox "common sense" boot, with its unnecessarily wide sole and heel. For carriage wear are elegant shoes of black undressed kid, black patent leather with tops matched to the costume, also bronze kid models with brown undressed kid or cloth tops. The lining for fancy low shoes over dark slik stockings for the promenade is more pronounced than ever this season.

says a lady tourist, writing of a recent function in connection with the royal wedding: "At the Marlborough house garden party the decided beauty of the day was the Princess Helene d'Orleans. Divinely tall (she nearly equals Lady de Grey in height), with beautiful dark gold hair and glorious eyes, and dressed in a soft, exquisite French froufrou of plak, she looked like wondrous picture. I think she must surely be the loveliest person in England at the present moment. She is very animated and amusing also, so she has more than mere looks to make reharming. Again, at the duchess of Devonshire's ball, that same evening, she was the beauty, and again she wore pink, her favorite color, which was this time a Parisian dream of satin, Marie Antoinnette brocade and rare old cream-tinted silk Spanish guipure lace."

A LEGAL POINT

Causes Judge Calhoun to Hold Up His Decision

IN THE TURF EXCHANGE CASES.

He Is Not Satisfied That the Place Is Really a Turf Exchange-The Trial Yesterday

When Judge Andy Calhoun gets through hearing the many sporting cases brought before him he will know enough about sporting matters to add a volume to that class of literature to which John L. Sullivan's literary productions belong.

Within the past few days every form of sport, says, perhaps, price fighting, has been sport, save, perhaps, prize fighting, has been in his court for some sort of adjudication and he has had ample opportunity to let light in upon his mind, which might or might not be ignorant of such matters as betting on horse races, speculating in might not be ignorant of such matters as betting on horse races, speculating in futures and what not.

Now he has been called upon to say whether the business done by Mr. Jim Lynch and Mr. F. J. Linnell is legal or not.

Yesterday the character of the business was very thoroughly inquired into by him, and several people who knew what they were talking about explained the mysteries of book making, pool selling and mere betting. The case finally resolved itself into a question something like this: Is the business done by Mr., Lynch a turf exchange, and if so, can an agent legally conduct a business for an out-of-town firm that would be illegal if conducted by an Atlanta firm?

Mr. Fulton Colville represented the city in the trial and Captain W. D. Ellis appeared for the defense. Witnesses were introduced showing the character of the business. The telegraph operator testified that Mr. Lynch was merely the agent of bookmakers at several eastern race courses and received a commission of 10 per cent on all business done by him.

Mr. Lynch in his statement showed a letter from a Monmouth park bookmaker of-fering terms, etc. He explained that hook.

Mr. Lynch in his statement showed a letter from a Monmouth park bookmaker offering terms, etc. He explained that bookmaking differed from pool seiling in method, but amounted to practically the same thing in the end. At his place men came in and laid their money on such horses as they might select. If they won he paid them the amount of their winnings and received 10 per cent on the business.

Captain Ellis made a spirited speech. He said that Atlanta was literally plastered over with laws, and for a comparatively small city it had laws enough to goven an empire. This town, he said, was as much Mr. Lynch's town as it was anybody else's and he thought fit wrong to interrupt him. Judge Andy Calhoun smiled and said it was not a question of right or wrong, but a question of law, He himself might be guilty of sometimes phying the races, but that would have no effect upon his interpretation and appneation of the law.

Strong speeches were made by both Captain Ellis and Mr. Colvilie and Judge Calhoun announced that he would render a decision in the ease today.

A Prompt Settlement. Among the duties of journalism, the most pleasant one is to praise where praise is pleasant one is to praise where praise is due. Some time ago we were requested by Mrs. Mary Kenp, of Reynoldstown, to publish a letter-acknowledging the settlement by the Atianta Accident Association of a death claim within twenty-four hours of its occurrence. We are called upon again today by Mrs. Sou Brooks, of No. 64 Jones avenue, Atlanta, Ga., to publish a letter, which we give in full text below. This company being a purely Atlanta enterprise, chartered by the state of Georgia, and governed by the most prominent citizens of Atlanta, we take special pride in commending the same to all those who seek and governed by the most prominent citizens of Atlanta, we take special pride in commending the same to all those who seek to protect themfelves or their families by insurance against accidents, and who can afford to be without it. Accident insurance, in consequence of the lively competition, has become cheap enough to be within the reach of everybody, no matter how humble his station in life may be. To insure in the right company is the only matter for consideration, therefore, a company that bears on its face solidity and prosperity, and is liberal and prompt in its settlements as the Atlanta Accident Association, surely, seems to be the one to be selected by all those in quest of accident insurance. We repeat, we take pleasure in recommending this company.

Atlanta, Ga., August 9, 1893.—J. H. Winkler, Esq., Secretary Atlanta Accident Association, Atlanta, Ga. Dear Sir—My son, John Foster Brooks, a brakeman on the Georgia Pacific railroad, lost his right arm by an accident in attempting to make a coupling in Tallapoosa, Ga., on Saturday, July 15th, at 5 o'clock p. m. He had insured in your company on the 27th of April, 1893. I presented to you his policy on Monday, July 17th, at 9 o'clock a. m., and upon the testimony of the yardmaster of the above read, you naid me without de-

Monday, July 17th, at 9 o'clock a. m., and upon the testimony of the yardmaster of the above road, you paid me without delay the full amount of the indemnity to which my son was entitled (it being one-half of the death indemnity), deducting only therefrom the balance of the premium due and unpaid on the policy.

I desire herewith to express my sincerest thanks, not only for the settlement itself, but for the promptness (within twenty-four hours of the accident), and I beg to recommend your company to all who seek pro-hours of the accident), and I beg to recommend your company to all who seek protection from accidents—especially to railroad men. This letter is given by me without solicitation on your part, and you can make any use on your part, and you can respectfully, (Signed.)

A FORECAST.

Dr. J. M. Turner Talks of the Crop Is the Petition Charging F. W. Miller

BETTER TIMES ARE SEEN JUST AHEAD.

The Situation Will Clear Up as Soon as the Crops Begin to Move. Farmers in Good Fix.

With the approach of September and the consequent harvest of the cotton crop the revival of business activity is most auspiciously anticipated.

The moving of the cotton crop brings thousands of dollars into circulation and his attorneys, Bray & Mitchell.

The story is best told in the words of from early fall until late in the spring the commercial world feels the quickening influence of the all powerful staple.

With a view of obtaining a forecast of the thef ines tgoo dsi nth outlook for the cotton crop for the approach emark etan dar eage ntsf
ort hem os tpop ula rbra

Dr. J. D. Turner, of the Atlanta Company. Dr.
press and Warehousing Company. Dr.
f the first cotton mering season a representative of The Consti-Turner was one of the first cotton merchants in the city immediately succeeding Sherman's pyrotechnic visit in the sixties. He has been in the compress business for nearly twenty years and no one keeps in closer touch with the farmers' prospects than he. With a long and varied experience and a full knowledge of the out-look, Dr. Turner's views are of practical value. In speaking yesterday of the prospective crop he said:

"The outlook for the cotton crop is very fair now. The dry weather had a tendency to keep the word from developing as it should, but the recent rains have benefited it wonderfully and although the weed is small it is well fruited. This argues well marietta st. at forsyth for the crop with the outlook for a very good yield.

"In making inquiries about the condition of the crop I have met with many conflicting statements. Some sections would re-port the outlook not at all promising; others very fair, while others still would report the finest outlook for years. In north Georgia I am told the crop is not as good as it was last year; in western and middle Georgia I understand the crop was never better, while below Macon the outlook is said to be most flattering. With these onditions I look for a very fair average, with the crop better below Atlanta than "The crop, I think, will be fully as large as that of last year, or more accurately, this year now. I confidently expect it to reach 7,000,000 bales, if not more. As to the price that will be governed by many circumstances, not the least among which will be the financial condition of the country. You know it takes money to handle the crop and if the depression that has existed here all the summer is relieved by increased circulation the logical result, you can see, will be better for the price. The crop is obliged to be taken, though, and if the season should open with depression

the staple will ultimately command the noney necessary to move it. "There is one flattering condition so far as the farmers are concerned, and that is that the coming crop has been made at less expense than any since the war. Meat has been high, money has not been easy o get, credits have been given very spar ingly and the result is that the farmer has not been able to indulge so freely in the expenses usually attending the making of his crop. As a result of this, when the crop is harvested the farmer will have more clear money on his crop than ever before. It is an old saying that it is an ill wind that blows no one any good, and, while our people have suffered from the depression, if the farmers will emerge from it profitably the whole country will feel the inspiration and the blessings flowing from it." Turner's encouraging view of the outlook seems to be a very philosophical one and, as the tendency of his remarks had led him somewhat in the direction of the agricultural outlook, he concluded by saying:

"I think that when the clouds of this financial storm have cleared away you will find the farmers of the south in the best ondition of any people of the entire country. Since the war this section has not invaded much by immigrants, the natives have built up their lost fortunes alone, the home seeker has gone to the west and the northwest and those sections have grown vastly populous, while the southern people have weeded their own row. If newspaper reports are to be relied upon the other sections are in a deplorable condition and after this storm passes over it will be demonstrated to the world that the south is the best section in this country. It will, in my opinion, be shown that this is the most inviting field agriculturally in the United States.'
